

Monthly Fact Sheet - Areus Alpha Gold AMC

October 2023 Commentary

Alpha Gold continued its strong performance (+2.72%) in October, benefiting from long positions in spot gold. Bullion touched its lowest point in seven months on October 6th, a day before the attack in Israel. This triggered a bullish move as investors bolted for safety amid the ensuing crisis. Prices then retreated EOM on a combination of resistance around $2,000 and some profit-taking ahead of key economic reports.

Portfolio Strategy Overview

The Alpha Gold Portfolio is designed to be a technical, long-short, multi-strategy absolute returns focused portfolio, focusing on the spot Gold/USD currency pair. Alpha Gold aims to deliver high risk-adjusted returns that are uncorrelated to traditional asset classes.

The portfolio's returns come from realised trading gains in liquid spot gold transactions, via price action algorithmic trading strategies. With high trading volume and tight spreads Spot Gold is an evergreen asset class with high liquidity.

The trading portfolio is constructed with multiple diverse trading strategies to trade the spot gold instrument in order to exploit various market opportunities and inefficiencies and to diversify the portfolio's exposure to regulate overall capital drawdown.

It employs algorithms to minimise human failings and provides a systematic & risk disciplined approach in trade execution, optimising speed and scale for the portfolio.

Alpha Gold aims for double-digit absolute growth.

What is an Actively Managed Certificate (AMC)?

Actively Managed Certificates are revolutionising the investment landscape.

An AMC is a structured product that provides a “wrapper” for the investment strategy in an underlying portfolio, in this case The Alpha Gold Portfolio. The certificates are sold to accredited investors and the funds are used to implement the strategy. The investors then participate in the performance of the portfolio.

The Alpha Gold AMC can be accessed via 600+ settlement lines globally, including most major banks.
